

Sustainability

Biltwell Furniture is continually looking for ways to make a more sustainable product. We actively seek out and research products and manufacturing practices to make furniture that is better for the environment and better for you. Here's how we are making a difference:

Buying local.

Buying locally produced goods protects the environment from unnecessary carbon emissions and reduces energy consumption. Our beautiful handcrafted furniture is produced from beginning to end, right here in Portland. Our lifetime warranted frames are constructed from responsibly grown and harvested Northwest hard wood and our foam is also made here in Portland.

Waste Free Manufacturing Process.

We are committed to recycling, from sourcing our raw materials to the end of our product's life cycle. Our seat springs are made from recycled steel. In addition, all sawdust and wood scraps created during the manufacturing process are recycled or used by our employees to heat their homes. Foam and fiber scraps are returned to the manufacturer and recycled into carpet pad.

Built to Last.

Furniture made with the finest materials and manufacturing practices will last a lifetime or longer. With lifetime warranties on our springs, frames and cushions, we're reducing the amount of old furniture in landfills. In addition, the materials used to create our upholstered furniture are biodegradable or recyclable.

We value quality, integrity and style here at Biltwell - but not at the cost of the environment. We are committed to pursuing and maintaining sustainable practices at every level of the manufacturing process.
